

“People think that cleaning a building is just a man, his dog and a truck pulling up and doing a bit of a clean, but it’s just not like that. JT Group Director, Ray Tomlinson has built his brand across the country and has got the systems in place to deliver an excellent service. I need JT Group for the big complex jobs and Ray just gets in there and fixes the problem – I sincerely doubt there is anyone else in the country with that level of expertise.”

– PACIFIC COIL COATERS LTD

“I know that I can call JT Group and I’ll always get a professional and efficient response. I find that really valuable – I can trust them to do what I need them to do, freeing me up to concentrate on the other aspects of my job.”

– NEW WORLD HUTT

“Property washing and maintenance is a part of our business. It has to happen but it’s something you’d prefer not to worry about – and that’s what we’ve got at the moment. We’ve got someone who comes in and does it well and we don’t have to think about it.”

– MITRE 10 MEGA

“The guys that came to PlaceMakers are a credit to you and your business. Whoever trained them in Health & Safety did an excellent job. They signed the visitors book and then explained the job they were going to do. He showed me all of this on his phone and I signed it off. They were so safe, cones, harnesses, all the PPE gear. Very impressive!”

Reduction in water consumption by up to 80%

JT Group's washing process combined with New Zealand's first waterless cleaning system has resulted in a reduced overall water consumption of up to 80%. This revolutionary cleaning system is food grade certified and can restore a factory-new look to any exterior or interior surface.

Wastewater management systems

We use the latest technology so that as far as the environment is concerned, the glistening clean building is all we leave behind. This technology includes booms, drain covers, suction pumps and scrubbing machines which are used to remove waste water for safe disposal and a washing process that is programmed to clean effectively while using less water.

Working towards zero carbon emissions

JT Group's sister company Summit Building Wash technologies has developed a world's first 100% electric rechargeable commercial pressure washer, technology that will see JT Group become the first building wash company in New Zealand to adopt this smart technology. These machines are designed to run on a single charge with zero emissions and burn zero fossil fuels.

Specialists in technology, since 1962

JT Group started 60 years ago as J Tomlinson & Co Ltd, a painting and building restoration business by founder Joe Tomlinson.

In the early years Joe was determined to use the latest technology with the introduction of the paint roller in the late 60's and New Zealand's first airless spray unit that also doubled as a high pressure water blaster in the 1970's. Technology that produced a superior finish with cost savings back to the client.

This openness to technology continues today with JT Group being proud to introduce New Zealand's first automated building washing machine, the waterless cleaning system and our new electric water blaster. Technology today that is mindful of a sustainable future.
